Mock Interviews For T-level Students

As part of our ongoing commitment to social value and our active role as STEM Ambassadors, Danaher & Walsh recently supported Derby College by delivering a full day of mock interviews for 40 Professional Construction T Level students.

The session formed part of the college's Year One programme and helped learners prepare for upcoming work placement interviews in a realistic, employer-led environment.

Joanne and Mark attended the Hudson Building and spent the day conducting structured one-to-one interviews with each student. Every learner received personalised feedback, practical advice on how to present their strengths, and guidance on how to communicate their career interests clearly and confidently.

The sessions also offered insight into employer expectations within the construction and civil engineering sector, helping students understand the behaviours and skills valued in the workplace. The day strengthened their confidence and gave them a clearer sense of how to approach future interviews.

Inspiring the Next Generation

Our involvement helps to strengthen local education partnerships, improve employability outcomes and raise awareness of opportunities within the construction sector.

By giving learners direct access to industry professionals, we support the development of future talent and encourage a more confident and work-ready pipeline of young people.
