Supporting We Discover Industry at Limehurst Academy

Inspiring the Next Generation

The Brief

Danaher & Walsh Civil Engineering is proud to support We Discover Industry, a three-year programme at Limehurst Academy that helps socio-economically disadvantaged girls build confidence, develop employability skills and explore future careers.

The programme focuses on key growth sectors, including construction, engineering, advanced manufacturing, digital, life sciences and logistics.

As part of our social value commitment, Danaher & Walsh is supporting the programme through mentoring and role model engagement, helping students understand the wide range of opportunities available across industry.

Our Social Value Commitment

Construction and engineering continue to face skills shortages, making it vital that we engage with young people early and help raise awareness of the many career routes available.

Many young women face barriers when exploring STEM-related careers. These can include lower confidence, limited career awareness and fewer opportunities to engage directly with employers.

Through We Discover Industry, Danaher & Walsh is helping to challenge stereotypes, raise aspirations and support young women as they build confidence in their future potential.

The next mentoring session will take place in September.

Danaher & Walsh looks forward to continuing its support for the students at Limehurst Academy as they develop their skills, confidence and ambition over the coming years.

Through programmes such as We Discover Industry, we can help inspire future talent, support local education and contribute to a stronger, more diverse pipeline for construction and engineering.
